

PULLED OUT OF A QUICKSAND.

Well-Digger Heeb Saved by Pastor J. E. Mallman.

The Man Was Buried Alive Nine Hours, but Is Not Badly Hurt.

SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.
NEWTON, L. I., June 4.—Rev. J. E. Mallman, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, is regarded as a hero in this place, because of his deed of yesterday in rescuing John Heeb from the treacherous quicksand at the bottom of a twenty-three foot well, where he had been buried.

Heeb was digging the well in front of Charles F. Lang's saloon on Grand avenue, between Newton and Middle village. His helpers were Henry Schwitzer and Samuel Keating. The helpers worked the windlass at the top.

The well, built against the sides of the well, was three feet square. It did not reach within several feet of the bottom. A bed of quicksand was passed through yesterday morning. In the afternoon it began caving in, and before Heeb could escape he was covered and held fast. Schwitzer and Keating heard his cries and gave the alarm.

The alarm of the village came to the rescue, and among the first workers was Rev. Mr. Mallman. The well was widened and a new well-bore started. When it was completed, Heeb was hauled up to be stopped for fear of another cave-in, and Mr. Mallman was lowered into the old well.

The work was very dangerous and necessarily slow.

The pastor carefully picked his way, and on reaching the bottom scraped the earth away from the spot from which Heeb's voice was heard.

Heeb was finally able to get his hands through an opening in the sand, and was hauled up to safety, to which he clung until lifted to the surface.

Mr. Mallman followed him, and was received with a hand-shake, but was found to be not dangerously injured. He is married and is well known in Newton.

SHAKESPEARE AND SCIENCE.

The Venom of the Toad Proved to Be an Actual Fact.

A correspondent of the London Lancet maintains the scientific correctness of Shakespeare's assertion that the toad "sweats venom."

He says that this venom is of a tolerably powerful nature, and that instead of being secreted by the salivary glands, as in snakes, it is secreted by the skin, so the word "sweated" is most accurately descriptive.

This secretion, Dr. Guthrie states, also occurs in the toad through the parotid glands, and consists of a thick, milky fluid, like the juice of dandelion stalks in taste and appearance.

When injected under the skin it kills small birds in six minutes and dogs and guinea pigs in one-half to one and a half hours.

Dr. Guthrie kept a small toad in a cage with some lizards and one of them having bitten the toad became convulsed and died less than two minutes.
